

June 14, 2006

Drought

Trees will often drop leaves in response to drought. Though usually a general thinning, in severe cases the tree can lose all leaves and enter a period of summer dormancy.

Drought and heat stress on hosta.

Leaf roll due to a lack of water.

Scorch due to drought.

Turf can go dormant for 5 to 8 weeks without harm.